

IN THE FOOTBALL WORLD.

INDIANS DID NOT DOUGH TACTICS AGAINST HARVARD'S ELEVEN.

Reasons Why There Should Be No Disparagement Over the Crismon's Showing Against the Harvard Eleven.

The behavior of the Crismon Indians in Saturday's game with Harvard seems to have been above reproach. They played straight football from start to finish. The reason given by Remus Pierce, the captain of the red men, is that the Harvard players made no attempt to violate the rules and indulged in only the fairest kind of play. Pierce says that the Indians were eluded by some of the Yale eleven the week previous and that made them lose their temper. Besides refusing to play Princeton this year because of alleged rough handling last season, the Indians have also declined to play the Brown team for similar reasons. Pierce, by the way, declares that Yale is stronger in every department than Harvard, while Capt. Kromer of West Point believes that Harvard is more formidable than Yale. Harvard defeated West Point by 28 to 0, while Yale beat the Crismon by 10 to 0.

While there is some feeling of disappointment among Harvard men over the showing of the Crismon against the Indians, impartial critics say there is no cause for complaint. The Indians were undoubtedly the strongest opponents Harvard had met. The fact that Yale defeated them by 11 to 0 is not much more than the Yale eleven's usual record. The Indians were undoubtedly the strongest opponents Harvard had met. The fact that Yale defeated them by 11 to 0 is not much more than the Yale eleven's usual record.

The old saying that a man who engages in football with amateur players is bound to get a general escape injury does not hold good in the case of two noted players. De Saules of Yale and Lettice of Princeton were injured in the game, yet both are suffering from painful lacerations. De Saules, however, is one of the many who are suffering from the truth of the above statement. He has been playing on the Yale team two years, has done some terrific and clever work, and is a great deal in the condition of players who are injured. Harvard's long list of cripples and lame players for the year is a result of the rough handling of the Yale eleven. The game played by Yale against Harvard at Princeton was a very rough one. The Yale eleven was laid out, while Harvard and Princeton had many men injured. The condition of the Yale eleven was very bad. The Yale eleven was laid out, while Harvard and Princeton had many men injured. The condition of the Yale eleven was very bad.

The Indians drew so well at Cambridge that immediately after the game the Yale players agreed to accept the same date next season. On Sunday morning the Yale players were met at the Cambridge hotel and the Yale players were met at the Cambridge hotel and the Yale players were met at the Cambridge hotel.

CAMBRIDGE, Oct. 31.—Six of the men who lined up against the Crismon Indians on Saturday were not in uniform to-day. Coach Forbes said that the reason for this was that the Yale players were injured in the game. The Yale players were injured in the game. The Yale players were injured in the game.

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 31.—For the first time this season the "varsity" football team of Yale played at the regular practice. It was a hollow victory, however, as not a single member of the eleven which routed the Crismon Indians on Saturday was in the "varsity" line-up. Sullivan, the team captain, was injured in the game. The Yale players were injured in the game. The Yale players were injured in the game.

FRANCIS, Oct. 31.—The practice of the Yale football team was lengthened on to two full twenty-minute halves and the men were sent through the hardest football work of the year. The "varsity" were strengthened up to the line and they have Alex. Moffat to the line to urge them on. In the first half the Yale eleven scored on a pretty thirty-yard end run by Alex. Moffat, who played quarter back for the Yale eleven.

NO MONEY, NO FIGHT.

Box Office Receipts of the Hawkins-Downey Fight.

The Greater New York A. C. of Queens Island received another big haul last night. Dal Hawkins and Jack Downey did not fight because the Sheriff attached the receipts to the judgment, and the fight was postponed. The Greater New York A. MAHER AGAIN IN FORM.

HE LANDS THREE WINNERS IN GOOD STYLE AT AQUEDUCT.

Swiftness, at Liberal Odds, Captures the Handicap for All Ages—Village Pride and Noisy Also Win for the Talented Knocked Out a Favorite at the Barrier.

The favorites got away with three races out of the six run at Aqueduct yesterday, and followers of first-class racing need not be disappointed. The three winners were the three favorites, and the three losers were the three favorites.

The day opened auspiciously for the punter, as Maher brought Village Pride home three lengths in front. He followed his hand with a clever one-length win on Banquo II, after a hot stern chase. Continental slipped his field after Barfall and had his opponents guessing for his furlongs. Then he rolled his horse, and the crowd was disappointed.

It's the Fashion.

In all trades to imitate successful goods—it would not pay to imitate a failure.

Don't believe the dealer who tells you that any of the Mount Vernon Pure Rye Whiskey is just as good as that bottled by us at the distillery, and bearing the numbered guaranty label of the distillers.

Our is certified to be pure and fully matured after bottling and resting in the distillery until put upon the market.

It is put up in square bottles with a peculiar label bearing our name, and is securely wired and sealed.

All respectable dealers sell it.

ATHLETICS. What James E. Sullivan Says About the Big Consolation.

There is little doubt that the amalgamation of the Knickerbocker and New Jersey A. C. will take place in the near future. The members of both clubs are pleased with the proposed deal, and there seems little chance of any obstacle preventing the consummation of the negotiations.

James E. Sullivan, who while President of the New Jersey A. C. has been nominated for President of the Knickerbocker, is the one who has caused the situation. He said:

"I talked with me regarding the hiring of suitable grounds for the use of the members for training and outdoor sports. I suggested that there be an amalgamation of the two clubs, and that the members of both clubs be provided with a city clubhouse, just at the time their own clubhouses are rendered practically useless."

There is no opposition to the ticket which contains the name of James E. Sullivan for President of the Knickerbocker. It is a fact that the Madison Avenue Club is satisfied with the proposed consolidation.
